Sirs:

There was a past article in the Disney News regarding land acquired near Truckee, California for a Disney winter resort. What has happened to this project?

Sincerely,

Marie DeMartini
1024 Filbert Street
San Francisco, California

Plans for a year-round Disney resort in that area have been put aside at this time — ED.

Sirs:

In honor of Disneyland's 25th Anniversary, my wife Sharon baked a themed birthday cake 12" wide by 18" high for our four-year-old twin boys' birthday. We all wish Disneyland a Happy 25th!

Sincerely,

Welcome to Tahitian Terrace from Kikkoman

From the moment you first cut into a juicy N.Y. steak or tender teriyaki chicken as served in the island atmosphere of the Tahitian Terrace in Adventureland, you'll know you're in for a magical dining experience. The service, food and Polynesian entertainment are really something to write home about.

Beginning June 14, when the Disneyland Park begins its summer schedule, the Tahitian Terrace will begin serving both lunches and dinners on a regular basis. During the evenings, diners enjoy the Poynesian Revue . . . a colorful show complete with native dancers and drums, and flaming swords!

Tahitian Terrace is sponsored by Kikkoman — the company that makes the "vintage flavor" soy sauce noted for bringing out the natural goodness in foods. Kikkoman soy sauce is served at every table and used in most of the dishes for which the Terrace is known . . . pork ribs, mahi-mahi, Polynesian vegetables, Cantonese rice, in addition to the steaks and chicken. The Terrace also serves egg roll, deep fried shrimp and chicken or fruit salads. Children's portions are available.

At the Walt Disney World Vacation Kingdom, Kikkoman sponsors Adventureland Veranda.

Few people realize that shoyu (soy sauce) is undoubtedly man's oldest prepared condiment. An early ancestor of shoyu was a salty paste of fermented grains, which was introduced along with the meatless diet of Buddhism in the sixth century. The

Chicken Teriyaki

- 1 medium-sized fryer, cut into serving sized pieces
- 2/3 cup Kikkoman soy sauce
- 1/4 cup white wine
- 1 clove chopped or minced garlic
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon powdered ginger

Marinate for 1 hour. Remove from sauce and bake at 325° for 1 hour. Baste with marinade 2 or 3 times while cooking.

14th century saw Japan breaking away from China's influence and adhering strictly to the vegetarian diet, all the while improving the technique of the shoyu production. What emerged was a finely balanced seasoning used for a great variety of foods.

Kikkoman Soy Sauce is a naturally fermented blend of soybeans, wheat, water and salt using traditional brewing methods perfected centuries ago. Like fine wine, the true soy sauce must be age-mellowed. During this unhurried fermentation period, many flavors and subtle aromas develop which serve to heighten the important appetite-increasing effect of the sauce.

Kikkoman had its roots in the city of Noda, Japan in the 17th century and was incorporated in 1917. Now Kikkoman Shoyu Co., Ltd. has increased its product line to include other sauces, soup bases and alcoholic beverages.

Discriminating chefs who appreciate the experience and tradition that went into the making of Kikkoman soy sauce don't restrict its use to just meats and gravies. They find that it adds a zestful zip to salad dressings, soups, dips and vegetable toppings. Try it mixed with melted butter and brown sugar, brushed on grapefruit halves and broiled until glazed. A happy note for weight-watchers: soy sauce has only 12 calories per tablespoon compared to 100 or more in a tablespoon of oil or butter.

Florida Cypress Gardens

When Dick and Julie Pope first looked at the site which was to become one of the most acclaimed gardens in the world, what they saw was an eerie, yet fascinating, maze of tropical growth along the banks of Lake Eloise, most beautiful of some 100 spring-fed lakes in the rolling highlands area of Winter Haven. Centuries-old Cypress trees shrouded in silken wisps of Spanish moss towered majestically above the lake. The Popes envisioned a spectacular transformation. After four years of literally digging the drainage canals and planting the flowers by hand, on January 2, 1936, a 16-acre tract was billed as Florida Cypress Gardens and opened its gates to the world.

The Gardens became a major tourist attraction comprising more than 220 acres of botanical splendor crowned by swaying palms and mirrored in rippling lagoons. More than one and half million visitors a year came to wander the flower-framed walkways and admire the fairy-book natural beauty. Years later, Dick Pope's love of water skiing gave birth to what was to become the most famous water ski show in the world and earned Cypress Garden the reputation of the “Water Ski Capital of the World.”

After 44 years of operation, Cypress Gardens has opened the largest expansion in the history of the attraction, stretching to include another 14 acres to the south of the original park. The area includes more than 30 new attractions divided into two main areas: Southern Crossroads and The Living Forest.

Visitors to Southern Crossroads walk the cobblestone streets of an antebellum town nestled amidst a colorful, floral setting. Housed in a colonial-style theater in the heart of Southern Crossroads is "Legends of the South," a multi-media, historical presentation conducted by famous and infamous characters from some of the South's best-known legends. Confederate soldiers and pirates who sailed the Florida Keys appear and disappear. The secrets of bayou trappers and Cajun voodoo queens are revealed in this mystifying mansion of illusion.

In the Garden Cinema, guests view a film presentation on a three-story tall curved screen and become a part of such thrilling adventures as racing an airboat through the Florida everglades and riding a speeding boat safely through the winding Cypress Gardens canals, only to end up air-borne over a ski jump ramp.

Set beneath giant oaks and magnolias, Victorian-style bandstands set the stage for daily concerts of Dixieland jazz as well as character shows for children.

The Living Forest provides a natural Florida backdrop for the inhabitants of "Critter Encounters," an animal contact area for children, "Gator Alley," the lagoon home for 10–12 foot alligators and crocodiles, and "Fly Free!" a 15,000 square-foot aviary harboring several hundred rare birds.

The adventures of Southern Crossroads and The Living Forest combined with the splendor of the original gardens create a totally "Florida" experience. Columned plantation mansions, beautiful belles, colorful foliage, plenty of sunshine, and down-home Southern hospitality—Cypress Gardens is most certainly Florida at its best.

Don't Let This Parade Pass You By

One of the many highlights of the 25th Birthday Parade at the Disneyland Theme Park is Cinderella riding in a magnificent crystal coach pulled by six toylike Shetland ponies. The daily parade is just part of the year-long celebration at the Park, which is observing its silver anniversary all year long with a calendar full of special events.

Each colorful unit of the parade typifies a part of the themed land it represents. Mickey Mouse and his best buddies, Donald, Pluto and Goofy, wave to the crowd from the lead unit. From New Orleans Square come dancers and Dixieland music. From the Old West atmosphere of Frontierland, comes an authentic stagecoach pulled by prancing horses. The upbeat sounds of space-age music are featured by a musical group from Tomorrowland. Other popular groups from the Park — the Dapper Dans, Royal Street Bachelors and the Disneyland Park Band will provide live music in the parade.

The most memorable unit of all is the appearance of a six-horse team of prize black Percherons pulling the shining 1907 steam calliope that was first seen in the 1955 opening of the Park. It's the silver and blue icing on the cake of an impressive salute to the first quarter-century of the Magic Kingdom.

"Singing" For the Deaf

No matter where you go in the Magic Kingdom, you'll be entertained by any of a number of talented musical performers adding to the multitude of sights and sounds in each land. Whether it's capturing the feeling of another place or time or telling a story through lyrics, dance and music, each group communicates a message in its own special way.

The Kids of the Kingdom, a collection of energetic youths performing daily on the Cinderella Castle stage, add an extra dimension to their "Lady America" medley; the Kids' choreography includes sign language for the deaf.

The show was created for the Walt Disney World bicentennial celebration in 1976 and has continued to be popular with Magic Kingdom guests ever since. "Lady America" follows a patriotic theme and the sign language was added to enhance the idea of neighborly American's reaching out to each other.

During the 20-minute show, the Kids perform songs such as "Lady America," "Things Are Looking Up," "I Like You," "All Kinds of People," "Thank God I'm a Country Boy" and "Everything is Beautiful" and "Still Be Some Love Left Over" to which they add signing.

The signing fits easily into the choreography since the movements are fluid and are often symbolic of the words they express. Many of the signs can be quickly identified by even those not familiar with sign language. For example, the word "love" is expressed by pressing the hands over the heart.

Audience reaction to the show has been overwhelming. Many groups of deaf visitors have conversed back to the Kids, signing "We like you too!"

The Kids of the Kingdom "Lady America" show unites three basic forms of communication that surpass the spoken word in beauty of expression and universality — music, dance and sign language. What better accompaniment to song which states:

If you add all the love in the world,
Take away all the hate and the pain,
There would still be some love left over.

Let's go to the Movies

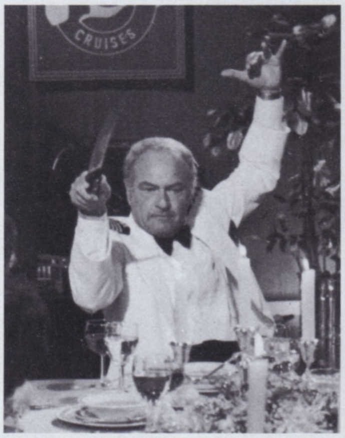
Herbie Goes Bananas

That incomparable Love Bug, "Herbie," certainly gets around. His fourth film, "Herbie Goes Bananas," is scheduled for release in July, and this one will positively establish the free-wheeling Volkswagen as an international celebrity.

"Bananas" was filmed in the Mexican resort cities of Puerto Vallarta and Guadalajara with much of the complex stunt production being recorded in Tijuana and the Panama Canal Zone. Joining Herbie in this new comedy are Cloris Leachman, Harvey Korman, Charles Martin Smith, John Vernon, Elyssa Davalos, Stephan Burns and Joaquin Garay. Television comedienne and dramatic actress Cloris Leachman plays a romance-minded divorcee trying in vain to capture the heart of a dapper cruise ship captain played by Harvey Korman. Stephan Burns and Elyssa Davalos provide the main love interest, having been brought together by the Cupid shenanigans of Herbie the Love Bug. Teaming up with Herbie to thwart the efforts of smugglers in South America is 12-year-old Joaquin Garay III — a regular in tv's "Cliffwood Avenue Gang."

Herbie's latest adventure takes him through the locks of the Panama Canal; into a bullring complete with a raging bull; into the steaming jungle; and finally to a downright dogfight on an airplane runway!

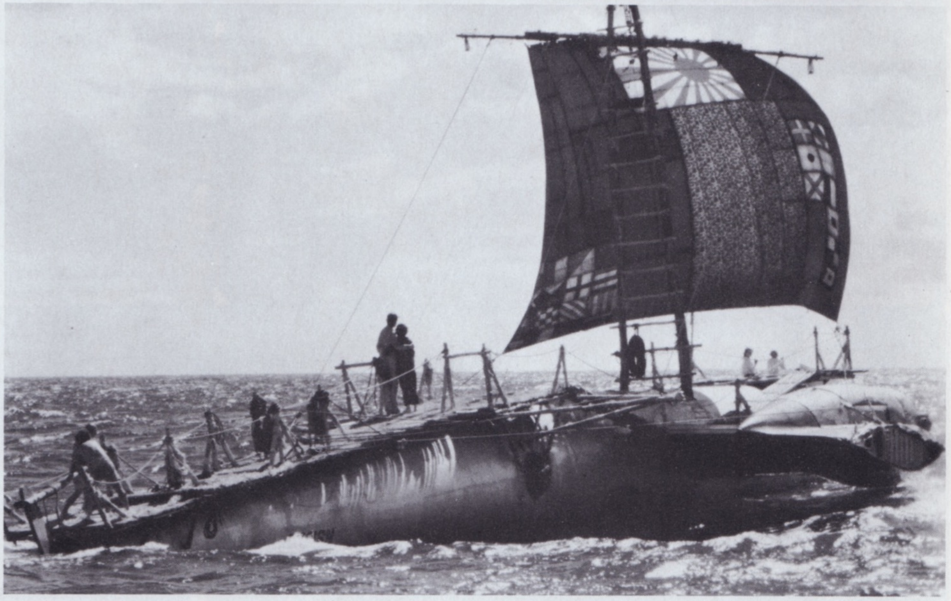
But Herbie is used to dangerous stunts and action-packed productions. His previous comedies — "The Love Bug" (1969), "Herbie Rides Again" (1974) and "Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo" (1977), have proved to be one of the most successful boxoffice series in the history of motion pictures.



From the very beginning, Herbie was no ordinary car. Aside from a physical resemblance to his assembly line counterparts, this 1963 sunroof model Volkswagen bug with the red, white and blue racing stripes, sporting the number "53" on his side, was clearly one in a million. In 1977, Herbie became the first automobile to imprint his tracks for posterity in the cement forecourt of the famed Grauman's Chinese Theatre.

"Herbie Goes Bananas" was written by versatile Disney screenwriter Don Tait who also acted as associate producer. A former child-star, Kevin Corcoran, acts as the second associate producer. Oscar-winner Danny Lee provided the outstanding special effects for the film. Vincent McEveety directed.

The Last Flight of Noah's Ark



Part of the movie fare offered by Walt Disney Productions this summer will be "The Last Flight of Noah's Ark," a loaded-with-action adventure starring Elliott Gould and Genevieve Bujold. The story's flight follows a turbulent journey of survival for four people in a decrepit World War II B-29 bomber loaded with farm animals.

Genevieve Bujold, winner of several international "Best Actress" awards, plays a prim evangelist who hires Elliott Gould, a pilot who prefers living in the fast lane, to fly the vintage B-29 filled with livestock to a South Pacific mission. Unknown to them, there are two stowaways aboard also— played by popular child movie star Ricky Schroder and by Tammy Lauren of the "Angie" tv series. A compass malfunction forces the plane from its course, and they are forced to beach it on an uncharted tropical island. Unexpected allies come to their rescue and they are able to convert the huge bomber to a makeshift sailboat so that they can sail on to civilization. But this is not before friendships develop between the children and a dolphin called Dodger, and between Gould and Bujold, whose early cold relationship soon melts into romance.

Unexpected help in the form of two Japanese soldiers comes to the planewrecked party. The two men, played by Yuki Shimoda and John Fujioka, have been stranded on the island for 35 years, still unaware that World War II has ended. After they've been briefed on past history, the pair prove to be skillful engineers who devise a design which converts the B-29 to a somewhat seaworthy craft. A patchwork sail is rigged which had its origin as a Japanese flag and old parachute. The plexiglass nose section of the plane provides a fascinating underwater panorama of the sea beneath them.

A secluded stretch of beach on the island of Kauai in Hawaii was utilized as the filming site for much of "Noah's" story. At the Disney studio, a special effects team reconstructed the crash of the B-29 in miniature. Many of the underwater scenes were completed far from the open sea in the friendly confines of the sound stage tank where "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" was filmed.

Procuring the five B-29s needed to complete "Noah's Ark" was a challenge to the production personnel. Four scrapped models were located at the Navy China Lake Facilities in the Mojave Desert. Two were shipped to the studio in Burbank dismantled and two to Hawaii where they had to be reassembled for various interior sets. The fifth plane, which had to fly and is one of only two existing models left in the world that is airworthy, was rented from Ralph Johnston of Oakland. (The other is owned by a group calling itself the Confederate Air Force . . . an organization interested in the preservation of vintage planes.)

With its noted stars and exciting screenplay written by Steven W. Carabatsos, Sandy Glass and George Arthur Bloom based on a story by Ernest K. Gann, "The Last Flight of Noah's Ark" promises to be a favorite of those searching for a summertime film adventure, both colorful and unique. The production was directed by Charles Jarrott and produced by Ron Miller and Jan Williams.

A marina, water garden and 165-foot long water cascade will again dominate the picturesque points of interest at the Disneyland Hotel this summer.

This year's Water Wonderland at the hotel complex will repeat last year's exciting evening entertainment of the Dancing Waters and Lights Fantastic Show…with its new 8-channel sound system and a sophisticated environmental laser beam sculpture, "Still Green." Visitors can stroll beneath the cool Horseshoe Falls water cascade which descends into reflecting pools emphasized by multi-colored lights. The Falls are located in front of the Bonita Tower, the newest addition to the hotel.

A colorful arts and crafts bazaar is housed in the Artisans' Market. Food concessions will offer a varied selection of delectables for eating out of doors.

At the marina, where visitors may rent peddle boats, there will be organized races for the younger set. Traveling parents have voiced their wholehearted approval to the evening supervised activities of the Children's Youth Clubs.

Evening musical entertainment is featured at the rooftop lounge, Top of the Park, and at La Cantina. Eating establishments include the Shipyard Inn, famous for savory seafood specialties; Mazie's Pantry, a sidewalk cafe; and the Chef's Kitchen.

A favorite pastime of the Disneyland Hotel guest is shopping in the myriad of shops located right in the hotel complex. Disneyland souvenirs are very popular to present to the folks back home. Toys, games and candy appeal to the small tots. Sportswear, brand name fashions and many unique gift items are offered in several boutiques, all within steps of each other. Travelers discover that this lively collection of specialty and gift shops is really a shopping adventure and very handy for the various items one inevitably forgets to pack.

Wonders of Walt Disney World

"School-age youngsters are capable of absorbing a tremendous amount of learning. Given the chance, they have an amazing aptitude for knowledge. I feel a full-time education for our youth is our best investment in the future."

— Walt Disney

A Kingdom of Learning Opportunities

The Disney education tradition began as early as the 30's and 40's when the Studio animators lent their talents to educators and doctors in the creation of educational films. The award-winning True Life Adventure Film Series brought unprecedented public awareness and concern for protection of our natural environment.

The Walt Disney Educational Media Company is known internationally for its fine selection of educational films, recordings, and activities.

Disneyland has hosted such programs as "Fun with Music" and the "Bicentennial Celebration." Every day in the Walt Disney World Magic Kingdom, history lessons are taught to thousands in the Hall of Presidents.

The "Wonders of Walt Disney World" is another step forward in education. And with EPCOT Center on the way, with all its emphasis on education and communication, the "Wonders of Walt Disney World" is another commitment to the notion that learning can be fun.

What is the "Wonders of Walt Disney World"?

The "Wonders of Walt Disney World" is an educational program that makes the physical and human resources of the Walt Disney World "living laboratory" available for valid off-campus learning during the school year for students in the fifth to tenth grades. "Wonders of Walt Disney World" focuses in four areas, offering students a choice of courses which includes "The Energy That Runs Our World," "Walt Disney World of Entertainment," "Disney Creative Arts," and "The Wonders and Beauty of Our World."

Unlike many field trips, the "Wonders of Walt Disney World" integrates learning activities before and after the student's trip to the Vacation Kingdom. These pre- and post-trip activities are designed to add educational value to the program and permit parents, teachers, and fellow classmates to become involved.

How does it work?

Let's say a family has decided to come to the Walt Disney World resort complex and wants to enroll their child in one of the four "Wonders of Walt Disney World" courses. They write in and make a reservation for the desired class on a desired day. Several weeks before their trip, a pre-trip book of information and activities is sent to the student. This book is designed to challenge the student to observe, compare, research, think, and form tentative conclusions about the course area. More importantly, these exercises encourage students to begin and continue their learning at home — investigating and appreciating the information and ideas that are already part of their world.

Once the students arrive at Walt Disney World, their program begins with a brief classroom session to orient them to the learning activities, objectives, and opportunities ahead.

They then leave the classroom for a firsthand look at the resources of Walt Disney World. Each student is given complimentary use of a Polaroid One Step® camera throughout the trip to record observations that will become a part of the students' reports back home to classmates and friends.

Students enrolled in "The Energy That Runs Our World" take an exciting look at how Walt Disney World uses, produces, and distributes energy in ways that offer solutions to the energy challenges ahead. Students see and learn about transportation systems, visit the GE Carousel of Progress to see the relationship between our standard of living and the use of energy in the home, and tour the Walt Disney World Central Energy Plant where they analyze such innovations as a computerized energy distribution system and prototype solar energy plant.

"The Disney Creative Arts" offers a look at the Magic Kingdom as a living, three-dimensional canvas where students discover the art that's all around them. They learn how the use of shape, color and texture come together. They learn about the careful planning that goes into the communication of ideas, moods, and feelings in all art forms — sculptures, mosaics, landscapes. The group members also demonstrate their grasp of the basics by creating their own portraits of Disney characters, under the direction of a Disney artist.

"The Walt Disney World of Entertainment" explores the three "roles" of entertainment — onstage performers, backstage performers, and the audience. Professional performers meet with the students to discuss and demonstrate the importance of lighting, sets, music, pacing, timing, and practice in putting on a successful show.

In "The Wonder and Beauty of Our World," students begin by viewing a Disney educational film that previews Florida's unique ecosystems and then take off on a tour of Discovery Island, an 11-acre sanctuary for over 60 rare species of birds and animals and the Disney conservation area, which includes 7,500 acres of protected wilderness, cypress swamps and marshland. Using binoculars, students observe, indentify and record in their nature logs an extraordinary range of plant and animal life.

At the end of the session, students return to the classroom for a wrap-up, relating what they have seen to their own world and to the future. The entire classroom and field trip session lasts four to five hours.

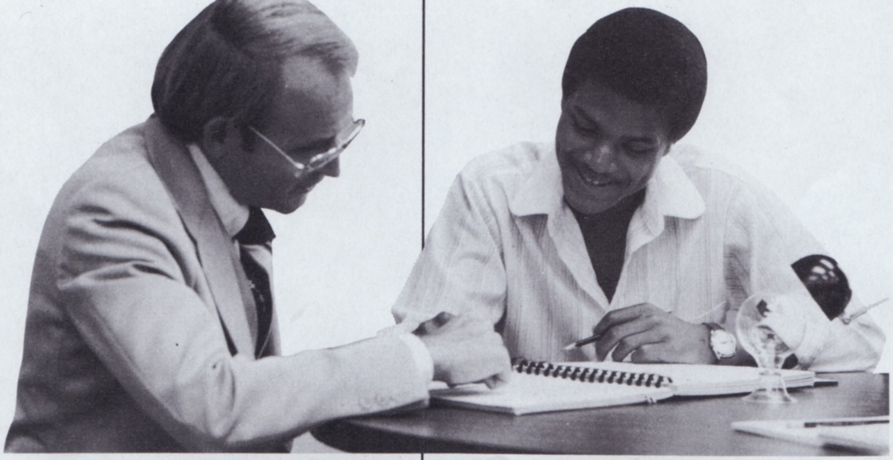
The learning does not stop at Walt Disney World, however. Students take home their creations or samples, photographs, a post-trip activity book and a new sense of awareness and appreciation for the Wonders around them.

Like any new Disney project, the "Wonders of Walt Disney World" has undergone extensive planning and development — initial planning began more than two years ago. To be sure the "Wonders of Walt Disney World" would be a Disney-quality program that met the criteria of the educational community for valid off-campus learning, Walt Disney World Co. worked very closely with the Georgia Department of Education in defining the objectives and goals.

Field tests were conducted in the spring of 1979 with students from Henry County, Georgia, and Orange County, Florida. On the basis of the results, the "Wonders of Walt Disney World" has received the cooperation of the state superintendents of Georgia, Florida, and New Jersey.

This spring, the first students from these three states participated in the "Wonders of Walt Disney World" pilot programs.

Current plans call for the program to be offered to selected states in the fall, and then regionally and nationally in the ensuing years. By the time EPCOT Center opens, a whole new "Wonders of Walt Disney World" program will be underway, incorporating the tremendous resources of the pavilions in Future World and the World Showcase.



COLUMBIA

The Gem of the Ocean

"Like a true ship, committed to her element once for all at her Launching, she perished at sea."

Richard Henry Dana

On September 30, 1787 an armed merchant vessel commissioned Columbia sailed from Boston Harbor to become the first ship to carry the American flag in oceans around the world. According to her log, she sailed to the Pacific Northwest and on to the Orient where she traded furs for chinaware, tea, spices and silks. When she returned to her home port in August of 1790, she had been at sea for 34 months and had logged a distance of 41,899 miles.

During the last months of 1790, the Columbia began her second expedition, again under the command of Captain Robert Gray. During this voyage, Gray discovered the river which today bears the name of the historical vessel. Several more expeditions were made by the Columbia during her proud lifetime. It is believed she finally disappeared without a trace somewhere in the Orient; although one legend has it that she was taken by a crew member and used as a privateer, while still another claims she was wrecked off the rocky shores of Nantucket.

The historical significance of the original Columbia was in its establishment of international trade routes and good relations with the West Coast Indian tribes. Its magnificent counterpart, located in the Disneyland Magic Kingdom, establishes a living history of the ship that helped create a Pacific Coast empire for the United States.

The fully-rigged, three-masted replica is berthed at Fowler's Harbor across from Tom Sawyer's Island in the Theme Park during the winter season. She was dedicated there on June 14, 1958. Research in the Library of Congress and a single steel engraving from the book, "Voyages of the Columbia," provided the background for the design of the vessel. Her hull was constructed at Todd Shipyards and then completed at the Park by workmen using similar tools to those used on the original ship.

"Below Decks" on the Columbia was opened February 22, 1964. It is an authentic replica of living conditions on the Berth Deck of the original ship... a veritable maritime museum. Visitors see the mess table surrounded by officers' cabins. The Captain's Great Cabin astern is furnished with a dining table, two bunks, chart table, and navigational equipment. Along the port side is an exhibit of tackle, blocks, sail and rope-making gear. There is a forge for tool making and an open-hearth galley on the opposite side for the cook. In the foc'sle are eight (not too roomy) bunks which were for the able and sometimes not too able seamen.

Topside, the sturdy Douglas fir planking of the Columbia stretches for an overall deck length of over 83 feet. Her mainmast reaches 84 feet above the weather deck.

Carrying passengers along the Rivers of America during the summer, the gallant Columbia joins a Disneyland fleet that includes the sternwheeler Mark Twain, keelboats, Tom Sawyer Island rafts and Indian war canoes. But although she is confined to the waters of a river, the Columbia has the proud bearing of her counterpart that once knew the freedom of much vaster expanses... when she was truly an original "gem" of the ocean.

Movies

Three outstanding motion pictures will dominate the Summer film scene.

First to hit the nation's theatre screens is "THE WATCHER IN THE WOODS," a haunting thriller about an American family who encounter bizarre happenings while living in the English countryside. Bette Davis, Carroll Baker, David McCallum, Lynn-Holly Johnson, Ian Bannen, Kyle Richards and rising young British actor Benedict Taylor star in this extraordinary film. John Hough directed on locations in England. Ron Miller produced and Tom Leetch was co-producer.

Scheduled for July release is "THE LAST FLIGHT OF NOAH'S ARK," an exciting adventure drama about an idealistic missionary, played by Genevieve Bujold, and a down-on-his-luck hardboiled pilot, Elliott Gould, who attempt to fly livestock to a South Pacific island. Ricky Schroder, Vincent Gardenia and Tammy Lauren co-star in the film photographed partly on location in Hawaii. Charles Jarrott directed for producer Ron Miller and co-producer Jan Williams.

The August offering is "HERBIE GOES BANANAS," a delightful bunch of laughs and thrills as America's favorite "love bug" goes adventuring south of the border. Cloris Leachman, Harvey Korman, Charles Martin Smith, Elyssa Davalos, Joaquin Garay, Richard Jaeckel, Alex Rocco, Fritz Feld and Vito Scotti co-star in the comedy. Vince McEveety directed for producer Ron Miller and associate producers Don Tait and Kevin Corcoran. Tait wrote the screenplay.

Disneyland®

Exciting "Family Reunion" 25th Birthday celebrations will continue throughout the Park's extended-hour schedule from June 14 thru September 6.

On the Park's actual 25th birthday, on July 17, there will be a 25-hour long party celebration with continuous entertainment.

The sparkling Main Street Electrical Parade will return to thrill evening guests as it has in seasons past. And a colorful daily 25th Birthday Parade will feature dancing and music from each of the themed lands.

Proclamation Honors Disney Contributions

On the occasion of Disneyland's 25th Anniversary, the late Walt Disney was honored by a proclamation passed by the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate. Speaker of the House Tip O'Neil made the presentation to Donn Tatum, Chairman of the Board of Walt Disney Productions, February 19, in the Speaker's Circle Chamber.

Text of the President's message follows:

"In the world of entertainment no name is more widely known than that of Walt Disney. For nearly fifty years, his creations brought us laughter and love, joy and gladness. The products of his imagination will enthrall and delight many more generations of children of all ages in every country on earth.

"The House of Representatives, by a joint resolution of February 13, 1980, has requested the President to issue a proclamation honoring the memory of Walt Disney for his contribution to the American dream.

"NOW, THEREFORE, I, JIMMY CARTER, President of the United States of America, do hereby call upon the people of this Nation to recall the accomplishments of Walt Disney and to honor his memory on February 19, 1980.

"IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this Nineteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and eighty, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and fourth." Jimmy Carter

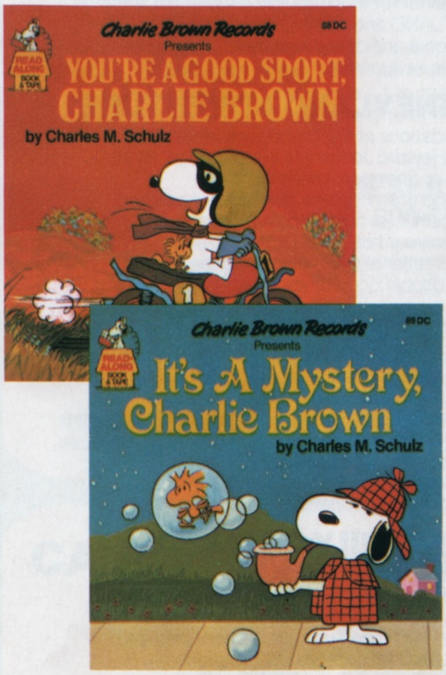
That evening at Constitution Hall, the Kids of the Kingdom performed the 25th Anniversary Show, "Disneyland is Your Land" and Donn received the proclamation again.

In separate ceremonies held in New York at the Avery Fischer Hall in Lincoln Center, Dick Nunis, Executive Vice President of Disneyland, Walt Disney World and Outdoor Recreation, received an honorary citation presented to Disneyland from UNICEF for Distinguished Conduct and Fidelity in the Performance of Outstanding Service to the World's Children. Ambassador McHenry, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, and actress Celeste Holm made the presentation Monday, February 25 before an audience comprised of delegates to the U.N. and their families.

Music and Records

Just in time for Disneyland's 25th Anniversary celebration, Disneyland Records presents The Official Album of Disneyland and Walt Disney World. The unforgettable music from popular park attractions like the Main Street Electrical Parade, It's A Small World, Country Bear Jamboree and the Enchanted Tiki Room is featured on this long-playing, 12-inch album.

In June, the best-loved Little Golden Books will be released on exciting Read-Along cassettes. The Saggy Baggy Elephant, The Tawny Scrawny Lion, The Poky Little Puppy, Rumpelstiltskin, There's No Such Thing As A Dragon and Thumbelina will entertain children with bright, happy songs, dramatic story narration, and true-to-life sound effects. There's even a 24-page, full-color storybook.



Also in June, Charlie Brown Records will release six brand-new book and cassette sets based on the popular Peanuts television specials. Laugh-filled adventures like Snoopy Come Home, You're A Good Sport, Charlie Brown, It's A Mystery, Charlie Brown, It Was A Short Summer, Charlie Brown, It's Your First Kiss, Charlie Brown, and You're The Greatest, Charlie Brown have been captured in these delightful Read-Along cassettes and books.

Mickey Mouse Disco continues to make chart-topping news!

Home Entertainment

Two new Disney Home Movies are available right now.

GOOFY OVER SPORTS. Our hero sprints through the history of the Olympic games as a runner, hurdler, pole vaulter and decathlon contender. This animated combination of classic Goofy shorts is packed with laughs and full of those ingenious surprises only Disney could conjure up. A pure collector's item.

English or Spanish Sound; mounted on 400 foot reel; 15.6 minutes.

BIG THUNDER MOUNTAIN RAILROAD. A souvenir film of the newest and most exciting ride at Disneyland.

Silent; mounted on 50 foot reel; 2.8 minutes.

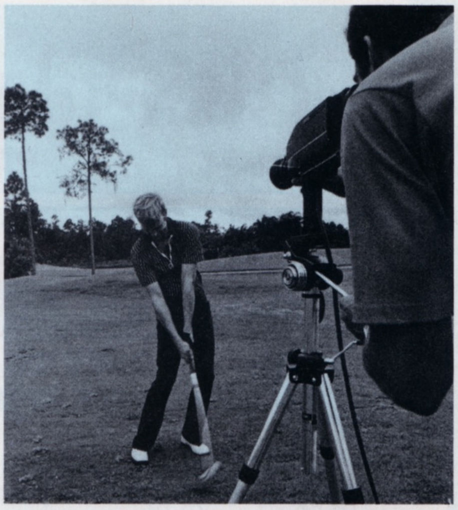
Walt Disney World®

Main Street Electrical Parade

This spectacular fantasy of more than 500,000 lights returns to dazzle Magic Kingdom visitors twice each night at 9 and 11:30 p.m. through most of the summer. "Fantasy in the Sky" fireworks set the sky aglow at 10 p.m., adding to the summer spectacle of light, color and music.

River Country

While the summer continues shining, late in the evening is a great time to take in the splashin' fun at River Country. The Ol' Swimmin' Hole, with rapids, rope swings, and water slides stays open till 10 p.m. every summer night, providing "coolin' off" fun for the entire family.



Golf Studio

The Walt Disney World Golf Studio offers individualized instruction, including swing analysis, videotaping, and a thorough equipment check for each golfer. The Golf studio is under the direction of top teaching pro, Phil Ritson, whose method has helped thousands of amateur and professional golfers, including Gary Player, who rates Phil's method as one of the best in the world.
